BVG: Damage running into millions due to missing invoices

Schoenefeld, June 2017

Due to missing invoices the BVG has recently experienced a financial damage running into millions. A request for a payment release of the green energy levy was denied because two invoices filed by energy suppliers were missing in the request documents. The invoicefetcher® team is wondering how the invoices could disappear and whether the energy suppliers might be able to find them again.

invoicefetcher® would like to win the BVG as a customer and download, file and archive their electricity invoices for them in the future.

About invoicefetcher®

Pick up, receive, organise and archive incoming invoices: The new German cloud service provider invoicefetcher® picks up invoices from web portals regularly and fully automatically. It saves time, money and nerves of tax consultants, accountants, freelancers and entrepreneurs. Established bookkeeping softwares, ERP systems and document management softwares are increasing their value thanks to invoicefetcher®.

In March 2017, the young entrepreneur Phillip Strauch announced the market launch of his company based in Brandenburg-Schoenefeld started with the goal to automatise the process of receiving and collecting digital receipts for private and business customers.

Currently, there are four options: from free accounts to professional access for large corporations with several clients. Receipts are saved for 10 years. Data storage (on German servers) complies with German data protection regulations.
